News from Japan

The Yokahama Herald of the 18th of September gives the particulars of the massacre of a Mr. Richardson by the retinue of a Japanese chief. It appears that on the 14th of September last a party went out to ride on horseback from the city of Yokahama to the country. It was composed of a lady, Mrs. Borradaile, and three gentlemen, Messrs. Marshall, Clarke and Richardson. They passed several bodies of retainers of the nobility on the road, and at length met a large body of two sworded men marching in two files about fifteen feet apart. They were all in a road about forty feet wide, and the Japanese began to crowd the foreigners to the hedge at the side of the road. The natives looked threateningly at them, and their chief, Shamadzoo Saburo, gave the order to kill the foreigners. Suddenly a man of large size who was walking between the two lines motioned them to stop, which they immediately did. He then motioned and shouted to them to turn round, which they immediately did, the horses wheeling round in their own lengths. This man, with a demoniacal expression and shout, rushed at the party. Richardson was nearest him. With the same motion with which he drew his sword from his scabbard, he brought it with great force across Richardson's back, dividing the ribs and exposing the lungs and intestines. About ten or twelve others drew their swords and rushed on the defenceless party, who had all behaved with the greatest courtesy and gentleness. With another sweep of the sword, he cut Richardson across the belly, and then aimed a blow at Mrs. Borradaile's head, and the sword cut off the top of her little hat. After this we can only look upon the escape of any of the party as nearly miraculous. Poor Richardson leaped up in his seat exclaiming that he had got his death blow, still held up his hand to avert the blow from Mrs. Barradaile, his hand was severed at the wrist; he was covered with blood; his bowels were protruding when his horse started forward. He still kept his seat. One of the others seized his horse's head and tried to lead him out, but after going about two hundred yards he fell from his horse. The yells were so frightful, and the other two gentlemen having both been seriously wounded, and seeing that he was dead, each one rushed off at full gallop. The body lay at about two hundred yards from where the occurrence took place. A coolie belonging to Yokahama, who happened to be passing near the body, stopped with others, when the retinue again came up, and Shamadzoo Saburo asked what was the matter. On being told that he was a foreigner he directed them to cut his throat, and they accordingly nearly severed the head from the lifeless body. The pony on which Mrs. Borradaile rode fortunately carried the horror-stricken lady back to Yokahama. Marshall and Clarke, sick and fainting from the loss of blood, made their way to the United States Consulate, where they received the warmest attention and kindness from that gentleman and every member of his family.

The Herald goes on to say: "So far as we can learn the different Foreign Ministers have viewed the matter—Richardson's assassination—in different aspects, and have taken independent courses of action in reference to it. The United States Minister, Pruyn, and the Dutch Minister, DeWitt, have, we believe, both notified the demand of the Japanese Government to their countrymen, respectively, making no comments thereon. The Portuguese Consul issued a notification in terms somewhat similar to Col. Neale's. Mons. de Bellecour, Minister for France (after long conferences with the Ministers for Foreign Affairs, in which he argued the question fully, and pressed strongly upon them the advantage of making a totally new road, by which Daimios could reach Yedo without passing Kanagawa,) issued a short notification to his countrymen of his having been informed of the passage of some dignitary on the days specified. It is stated that one of the murderers had been apprehended.

END OF THE PORT TOWNSEND WAR.—The S. F. Bulletin, of the 12th of November, gives a statement of the conclusions arrived at by Special Agent Brown, who was appointed to inquire into the Victor Smith affair at Port Townsend. It will be seen by the Bulletin's version that Mr. Smith is sustained:

"From the best authority we learn that he has made a thorough examination of the accounts of the Custom house from the date of Victor Smith's induction into office to the 1st inst.; that he found the accounts in good order, and that Mr. Smith was not now [illegible] time had been in default to the Government; but that on the contrary he found that the revolution in Custom House affairs there had been achieved in the interest of the Government solely.

"For the year ending the month in which Mr. Smith took office the cost of the Marine Hospital at Port Townsend was $40 000. For the first year of the new Collector it was $10 000. This pretty much [illegible] Port Townsend and [illegible] Smith [illegible]. Without any radical reduction in individual cases, a general reform was carried through other departments of that important district, until the total annual reduction of one item of expenses has reached $7[illegible] 000 per annum. Over and above this the Collector was able to turn over to the agent of the Treasury $[illegible] 800 cash of surplus funds, being an amount saved by keeping personal application out of sums he had been ordered to disburse from Washington. This answer by a cash surplus to a charge of default was considered good.

"The charges of Lt. Merry, and reproduced by a series of indictments that have been widely published, are pronounced by the Agent to be utterly false. From other parts direct from Puget Sound we hear the same positive statement in regard to these charges, and reports of a revulsion of popular feeling in the Sound in Smith's favor—he having refused to make any statements or explanations to the public prior to the investigations of the Special Agent.

"The removal of the Port of Entry is stated to have been a Revenue necessity, from its approximity to the free port of Victoria, and a Revenue cause. It was found that the Collector [illegible] directly or indirectly did not own a foot of ground in the Territory [illegible] Port Angeles [illegible] his [illegible] and [illegible] been secured [illegible] Government reservation on the day after the passage of the Port Angeles bill through Congress."

TUESDAY MORNING, DEC [illegible] 1862

Location and Importance of Fredericksburg

The town of Fredericksburg is situated in Spotsylvania county, on the south side of the Rappahannock, one hundred and ten miles from where it empties into Chesapeake Bay. The river is navigable to Fredericksburg, in small seagoing craft. The population is near 5,000. It is fifty eight miles Southwest of Washington, and sixty five miles North and a little West of Richmond. The Potomac runs Southwest forty or fifty miles from Washington towards Fredericksburg, until it receives the waters of Aquia creek, about nine miles Northeast of the latter place. There is a good landing at the mouth of Aquia creek, and deep water. From this landing there is a railroad running through Fredericksburg to Richmond. The country through which it passes is represented to be gently undulating with a sandy soil. To reach Richmond, it is necessary to cross, in addition to the Rappahannock, the Pamunkey and Chickahominy rivers.

If the reader will get any of the maps published by the illustrated papers in the early part of 1861, he will find that the Confederates are represented as having fortified the approaches to Fredericksburg on the Aquia creek road. On the occasion of the first battle of Bull's Run Gen. Holmes was ordered to march from the Aquia creek road and reinforce Gen. Beauregard at Manassas. He arrived there just at the close of the action. His corps numbered 25,000 men. We mention these facts to show that the Confederates attached great importance to the position at Aquia creek, and kept a large force there to defend it. It may be asked why the Unionists did not strike the Confederates at this point at the commencement, when they showed by their preparations that it was a weak point in their line of defense? Plainly because the Confederates held important positions on the Potomac above Aquia creek, by which they had the river blockaded for months, so that it was first necessary to drive them South of the Rappahannock before the position could be made use of for a base of supplies. When the enemy was driven beyond Warrenton, in April last, Gen. McClellan decided on making the attack by way of the York and James River peninsula, so the value of this line of communication was not tested.

After the Seven Days' Battle before Richmond, Gen. Burnside was ordered to come from North Carolina to Gen. McClellan's aid. He left Gen. Foster in command in his old department, and came to James River. About the close of July, it will be recollected that Gen. Burnside was reported as being detached on an important expedition, which was kept secret. He finally turned up in August at Aquia creek. His advance occupied Fredericksburg. The reader will plainly see that the intent was to make Aquia creek the new base of operations. But the Confederates commenced moving too soon for the Unionists. By the 10th of August they fell like an avalanche on Pope, doubled up his right wing, while amusing him by weak demonstrations on the Rappahannock, and finally drove him back with irresistible impetuosity on Washington. During this time, Gen. Burnside was reported to be "safe" at Fredericksburg and Aquia creek. When it was evident that the Unionists were no longer in a position to take the offensive, but needed all their forces for the defence of Washington and Maryland, Gen. Burnside's force was withdrawn by water, and shared in the bloody and fruitless victories of South Mountain Gap and Antietam. From thence McClellan's subsequent maneuvers we cannot learn whether he intended to assume the Aquia creek landing for his base of operations, but it is reasonable to believe he did intend it when he sent Burnside from James River to occupy that place, as noticed above. At any rate, Gen. Burnside shows an evident preference for that line of attack, and he is going energetically to work to make the most of it.

Elegant Specimen.—The English press find fault with the American for the coarseness of their newspaper writing. In commenting on Gen. Butler's conduct of affairs at New Orleans, in extorting the oath of allegiance, a late number of the London Times gives us the following elegant example:

> "The Northern people ought to be ashamed of themselves for keeping this stupid ruffian in such a post. A gentleman with little tact ought by this time have let loose those 3,000,000 cotton bales finding [illegible] which would have tempted both parties [illegible] the North and purchased [illegible] the South. [illegible] this miserable creature is in command [illegible] New Orleans [illegible] no other use but as a warning to all Southern cities what submission to the North may be."

Fatal Affray.—A man named Riley, formerly an inmate of the penitentiary in this city, mortally wounded A. C. Humphreys, at Kanaka Flat, near Jacksonville, on the night of the 13th inst., by stabbing him. The knife struck on the right side of the abdomen, penetrated the intestines and entirely severed what is called by surgeons the "internal iliac vein." The deed was done at a gambling saloon and there was a most infamous crowd of whites, negroes, Kanakas and squaws present. Humphreys commenced the fight by striking Riley. He survived two days.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

LATER FROM THE EAST.

Dates to Dec. 15th.

New York, Dec. [illegible]—[illegible] the Herald [illegible]

The battle [illegible] throughout the day and evening [illegible] dark. [illegible] fighting [illegible] Fredericksburg [illegible] Sumner's division [illegible] of the city with a strong detachment of skirmishers. [illegible] but [illegible] and [illegible] musketry was incessant. At this time [illegible] batteries [illegible] stationed on the bluffs [illegible] with shell [illegible] rebel infantry having fallen back to their first line of works, their batteries opened with vigorous and rapid fire upon our [illegible] which brought them to a temporary halt. [illegible] time our artillery on the bluffs kept up the rebel batteries with considerable success, and the rebel battery on [illegible] Hill [illegible] Falmouth was finally silenced. During all this time the rebel artillery was entirely devoted to shelling our advance.

Soon after, the whole [illegible] was deployed into line of battle and [illegible] attack and storm the rebel [illegible] on the right, which [illegible] the enemy's works a terrific shower of shell, grape and shrapnel [illegible] actually through [illegible] Notwithstanding this they steadily pushed on to the rebel [illegible] within a short distance of the first line of intrenchments. [illegible] drove the rebels from the former, making prisoners of some while the remainder took shelter behind the intrenchments. This was accomplished after most heroic and continued effort and in a most galling and murderous fire. Unable to stand against it, they returned in good order, carrying away their wounded to their right and line of pickets, though holding the ground they first occupied after having been six hours under fire.

Chicago, Dec. 1[illegible].—The following is believed to be nearly correct as to the number of our army at Fredericksburg: Hooker's corps about 50,000; Franklin on the left, and Sumner on the right, each with equal numbers; Sigel with 25,000 advancing in the centre and Slocum with 15,000 executing flank movements on the enemy's left.

Chicago, Dec. 1[illegible].—The situation at Fredericksburg, as briefly stated, is as follows: We have crossed in force and hold the city. The rebels hold a semi-circular line of works, ranging from one to three miles back of the river. There remains three things for us to do. We may attempt to storm their works or stand on the defensive where we are, or bring up reserves and attempt to turn their flank. In the first case, if defeated, we would be thrown back on the river without any sufficient means of crossing.

There was no fighting of any consequence yesterday.

Fortress Monroe, Dec. 1[illegible].—The Richmond Enquirer has the following: Heavy firing was going on at Fredericksburg and cannonading is severe. On the 11th our batteries stationed above and below town, opened fire on the gunboats in the stream. The firing lasted an hour and a half, and was very heavy and rapid. Eleven houses were struck, four being completely destroyed.

Washington, Dec. 1[illegible].—Up to midnight no intelligence of importance had been received from the army. There was occasional firing during the night. The Richmond Enquirer says twelve Yankee regiments left Newbern Saturday. Some think their destination is Wilmington, but more general belief is that they will attack Weldon and Petersburg.

Cincinnati, Dec. 1[illegible].—Southern dispatches say that Jeff. Davis arrived at Murfreesboro on Friday. Gov. Brown, acting under authority of the Legislature seized a half million dollars worth of goods, in Augusta, for the use of the soldiers, to be paid for at reasonable rates.

Nashville, Dec. 12.—The rebels have a heavy force near Nolansville, another at Murfreesboro', and a considerable force this side of Nolan's creek—the entire number is estimated at 70,000.

The New Base.—For the further elucidation of the advantages of Gen. Burnside's new line of attack and base of supplies we republish the following extract from the New York Herald, of the 19th of November:

> "The army of the Potomac has moved or is moving down from the neighborhood of Warrenton [illegible] the foot hills of the Blue Ridge chain of mountains to Fredericksburg, as its new base of operations. By turning to a map of Eastern Virginia the military advantages of this change of base will be apparent to the reader. In advancing southward from Warrenton the rear [illegible] Gen. Burnside would be exposed to the [illegible] forays and surprises, involving the possible losses of valuable supply trains and depots of provisions. But with his base of [illegible] at Fredericksburg, his right commands an open country, and his left flank is completely protected by the Rappahannock—a [illegible] navigable river—from said city to the Chesapeake Bay. A great [illegible] the majestic Lower Potomac, brings that river [illegible] within the immediate reach of Fredericksburg [illegible] Aquia creek [illegible] only nine miles north of the city, with which it is connected by a railroad.
> "Thus the broad and deep Lower Potomac for nearly half the distance between Washington and [illegible] the direct, cheap, safe and certain [illegible] through which the supplies for Gen. Burnside's army will be transported to his principal depot at Aquia creek, [illegible] [illegible]
> "In every point of view the [illegible] Richmond [illegible] positive advantages, including the [illegible] and the fortifications of [illegible] the finally summer [illegible] winter campaign is the very thing [illegible]"

Life in Germany.—J. Ross Browne writes from Frankfort on the Maine that the Germans are fearfully and wonderfully slow. He gives this intensified picture of German dullness:

> One week is the same as [illegible] years [illegible] [illegible] generations. All this time [illegible] [illegible] this is the way the world [illegible] Germany.

Josh Billings says that pickets are chaps that are sent out to borrow tobacco of the enemy, and see if the rebels have passes properly signed.

CITY.

The MORNING OREGONIAN has a larger SUBSCRIPTION LIST than any other Daily published in this City.

MASONIC ELECTIONS.—At a regular meeting of Harmony Lodge No. 12 F. & A. M. held on Monday evening, December 22d, the following named members were duly elected officers of said Lodge for the ensuing Masonic year: T. H. P[illegible], W. M.; A. G. Walling, S. W.; D. C. M[illegible], J. W.; S. M. Lyon, Treasurer; J. W. F[illegible], Secretary, and C. G. Schramm, Tyler.

RAPID WORK.—On Saturday evening last the main driving shaft of Estes & Co.'s steam saw mill was broken. It was placed in the hands of Mr. Monastes for repair. The shaft was stripped of its gearing, taken to the machine shop, welded, turned, grooved, taken back and put into the mills again in time for work on Monday morning. The facilities for this kind of work in this place are fully up to the requirements of the country.

MORE OF VICTOR SMITH.—The S. F. Evening Journal rather delicately hints that the defense of Victor Smith, which we copy from the Bulletin, is written under improper influences. The Journal compares Victor to Horace Greeley, and says he is boarding at the Miners Restaurant, where they give three plates for a quarter, with a view to test how little a man can live on; and when he has tested the fact he will move to have salaries reduced to living rates.

DALLES WATER WORKS.—The street mains for the Dalles water-works are finished to Main street, and water can now be turned into the service pipes along that thoroughfare. The work has been prosecuted with great energy and rapidity by Mr. Pentland, formerly of this city. The supply of water is bountiful, and the facilities for distributing it are unsurpassed. Viewing the prosperous future of Dalles as a certainty, the enterprise cannot but be a great pecuniary success, as well as a great public convenience.

MASONIC.—The following are the officers elected for the ensuing Masonic year, by Eugene City Lodge No. 11, A. F. & A. M.: A. Smith, W. M.; J. G. Gray, S. W.; C. C. Croner, J. W.; E. F. Skinner, Treasurer; J. B. Underwood, Secretary; P. G. Lamley, Tyler.—State Republican.

FORTIFICATIONS OF NASHVILLE.—Nashville, Tennessee, was recently considered in danger of attack from Bragg's forces, on their retreat from Kentucky. In case of any disaster to Gen. Rosekrans' forces, Nashville becomes a military position of the first importance. To assure the loyal reader that we are not in much danger of losing it in any contingency, we copy an account of its defenses from a late number of the Philadelphia Press:

The forts in Nashville are the most complete of the kind in the country. Fort Negley, situated on St. Cloud Hill, is the masterpiece, and was constructed almost entirely by negroes, under the engineership of Capt. Morton, a Philadelphian. The work covers nearly twelve acres of ground, and communication is carried on by means of subterranean passages from one portion of the fort to another. In the centre is a fine stockade capable of garrisoning a full regiment. The fort mans four 32-pounder steel guns, called the Rodman, and said to be the best pattern in existence, four very heavy guns which our troops took at Donelson, two of them large enough to throw a sixty four solid shot, and a battery of field pieces, making fourteen guns in all. The Rodmans are protected by a bomb-proof arrangement invented and built by Captain Morton. The hill is a most commanding eminence and would successfully stand a most severe shock. An artesian well is being made, the boring having already descended nearly a hundred feet. Parallel rifle pits encircle the hill, while, still more extended, are obstructions to delay a cavalry charge.

Fort Confiscation is inferior in beauty and general appearance, but superior in point of eminence and situation. It is created on Jones Hill upon the Franklin pike, embraces a fine stockade and earthworks, and is surrounded by breastworks of cotton bales, which extend to Fort Casino, situated in the rear, and is fortified not so much for offensive as defensive operations. Both hills mount six rifled steel guns, called the "Wiard," and garrison one regiment of infantry.

Fort Andy Johnson is the name of the splendid works upon Capitol Hill. The stockade completely surrounds the structure, and is held by the First Tennessee Infantry Regiment. The fort proper mounts four 32-pounders and two howitzers.

Besides the grand work there are four redans, mounting a 12-pounder howitzer each. The redans serve as important auxiliary forts, and resemble, in outward appearance, huge prows.

Besides these defenses the city is encircled with parallel rifle pits and breastworks of cotton bales.

Special Meeting.—Protective Engine Co. No. 4—Meeting at the house of V. H. & L. Co. No. 1, at 7 o'clock P. M., this evening. By order of the President.
M. MOSKWITZ, Secretary.

No Opium or Calomel.—DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM has no equal as a Lung Medicine, and as it contains no Opium or Calomel it is especially adapted to the delicate constitutions of females, and those suffering from Consumption, or any protracted Lung Complaint. We advise any such to give it a trial.

Coughs.—The sudden changes of our climate are sources of PULMONARY, BRONCHIAL and ASTHMATIC AFFECTIONS. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should at once be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches" or Lozenges, let the Cold, Cough, or Irritation of the Throat be ever so slight, as by this precaution a more serious attack may be effectually warded off. PUBLIC SPEAKERS and SINGERS will find them effectual for clearing and strengthening the voice. See advertisement. dec16d&w1m

White's Patent Lever Trusses.—These instruments are recommended to the public as the best ever yet invented. The principle is new and different from any other. The Pad works over a Knuckle, giving it a circular INWARD and UPWARD motion, thus being able to support the rupture with half the pressure required by other Trusses. The pain consequent upon heavy pressure is thereby avoided.

These instruments will not rust, and are the lightest, most durable and most cleanly of all others. They can be washed at pleasure. Many persons have been cured by them of ruptures of several years standing.

This medicine has been used in private practice for many years with great success. [illegible] failed to effect a [illegible] Ague especially [illegible] having been found sufficient [illegible] in most cases [illegible] more than two bottles required.

A great number of testimonials could be given to verify these statements, but the proprietor prefers relying upon the merits of the medicine [illegible] nine cases out of ten.

Prepared only by ROBERT WHITE, Chemist and Druggist, Main street, Placerville and Broadway, Upper Placerville. For sale by all respectable Druggists throughout the State.

THE SOLDIER TO HIS MOTHER

"Kiss my little brother for me, my sisters, and tell them I died for my country."

On the field of battle, mother,
All the night alone I lay,
Angels watching o'er me, mother,
Till the breaking of the day.
I lay thinking of you, mother,
And the loving ones at home,
Till to our dear cottage, mother,
Boy again I seem'd to come.

He to whom you taught me, mother,
On my infant knee to pray,
Kept my heart from fainting, mother,
When the vision pass'd away,
In the gray of morning, mother,
Comrades bore me to the town,
From my bosom tender fingers
Wash'd the blood that trickled down.

I must soon be going, mother,
Going to the home of rest;
Kiss me as of old, my mother,
Press me nearer to your breast.
Would I could repay you, mother,
For your faithful love and care:
God uphold and bless you, mother,
In this bitter woe you bear.

Kiss for me my little brother,
Kiss my sisters, loved so well,
When you sit together, mother,
Tell them how their brother fell.
Tell to them the story, mother,
When I sleep beneath the sod,
That I died to save my country
All from love to her and God.

Leaning on the merit, mother,
Of the ONE who died for all,
Peace is in my bosom, mother—
Hark! I hear the angels call!
Don't you hear them singing, mother?
Listen to the music's swell!
Now I leave you, loving mother—
God be with you—fare you well.

The Model Merchant.

A very staid and worthy old gentleman resided in New Haven, whom a successful mercantile career of thirty years had placed in independent if not affluent circumstances; but through custom or desire to add to his already princely store, he still continued his anteprandial visit to the counting-room. One morning the good wife had postponed the matutinal meal in consequence of his absence, until that rare and valuable thing in woman, her patience, was nearly exhausted. At last, however, he made his appearance, and without any apology for his tardiness, but looking glum and out of humor, he sat down to eat. A cup of coffee partially restored him, and, opening his mouth, he spake:

"A most extraordinary circumstance! most extraordinary, indeed!"

"What do you mean, my dear?" demanded the lady.

"Mean? Here have I been to open the store with my own hands, and after sitting in the door a full hour, waiting for my boys, not one of them has made his appearance, and I was forced to close the store again and come home to breakfast."

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the lady with horror, "you have not been to the store? Why it's Sunday!"

"Sunday?" returned he; "Sunday? impossible, madam! We did not have codfish for dinner yesterday!"

Antiquity of Loafers.

It may be consoling to some busy people, who groan over the losses of time occasioned by the visits of idlers, to know that similar feelings have been experienced years ago, as is revealed by a curious inscription discovered among the ruins of Pompeii.

The excavations at the buried cities of Pompeii, Herculaneum, Pozzerol, and Capua, are going on with renewed vigor, under the stimulus of an appropriation of money for the purpose from the Italian Government. Heretofore Naples had the work under its exclusive care and control. At Pompeii new frescoes have been discovered, and there is an inscription on the wall of what was probably a workshop of some kind, as follows: "Otiosis hic locus non est. Descede, Morator." This may be translated, "This place is not for the lazy. Loafer, depart!" This inscription is as good for industrial establishments of modern times, as it was for those of ancient Pompeii. Its discovery is interesting, from the fact that it shows that human nature was the same eighteen centuries ago in Italy, as it is now in America; that there were lazy folks and loafers who would intrude into workshops, and waste the time or divert the attention of the workmen; and that it became necessary to put up inscriptions, giving a general warning to all such to depart.—Eve. Bulletin.

"DIED!"—That word is not limited to the written obituary column in the newspapers. It is written over the churchyard gate, on every white slab in ten thousand cemeteries, on every page of the great volume of nature itself, which we read from day to day. Generations, nations and kingdoms have all been numbered under that one word—"Died." Under that word may be reckoned more than twenty-five and a half millions of the human race every year, or more than eighty-six thousand every day, and upward of three thousand every hour. It is fearful to realize, in this busy, active world, that with every tick of the clock, every beat of the pulse, a living soul glides into eternity, leaving scarcely a ripple upon the sea of human life, to be noticed by others. As it has been with past generations, so it will be with you. Over your name, in a single line, in some daily or weekly newspaper, which is rapidly read and thrown aside, will stand that significant word—"Died!"

An anxious father had been lecturing his desolate son, and after a most pathetic appeal to his feelings, discovering no signs of contrition, exclaimed:

"What, no relenting emotion? not one penitent tear?"

"Ah, father!" replied the hardened hopeful, "you may as well leave off 'boring' me, for you will obtain no water, I can assure you."

A young gentleman, who was at one time very much smitten with a pretty little "Friend" says that during his travels thro' the West Indies he often felt some very severe shocks from earthquakes, but they were not a circumstance when compared to those which he experienced from this little Earth Quaker.

"I think our church will last a good many years yet," said a waggish deacon to his minister. "I see the sleepers are very sound."

PAIN PANACEA.

Is composed entirely of healing gums, and vegetable oils and herbs. It is perfectly safe for the most delicate to use. I can most sincerely say that I have never known any, however delicate, to be injured by it in the least. I will continue to ask the afflicted, who have not used it, to try it for the following diseases. If they are not satisfied with its healing properties, the money will be cheerfully returned by the agent where the medicine is for sale.

If you have pain in the stomach or bowels, try a dose of Pain Panacea internally, bathe externally over the parts affected, and you will at once restore the proper action and relieve the pain.

If you have a Bruise or Wound, bathe it well with the Pain Panacea four times a day. It will remove the pain, and take out all the poison, and heal the wound in a short time.

If you are suffering from Neuralgic or Rheumatic Pains, apply the Pain Panacea freely, and take a dose of it internally, morning, noon and night; it will not only cure the pain, but will remove the cause of the disease.

If you have the Dyspepsia, and sour food distresses your stomach after eating, take a dose of Pain Panacea after each meal.

If you have a Cankered or Sore Mouth or Throat, apply the Pain Panacea, to the affected parts, and gargle the mouth or throat three or four times a day.

If you have the Diarrhoea, or a relaxed state of the bowels, take a dose of Pain Panacea, and they will soon be restored. If you have a painful swelling, bathe the parts freely, and you will soon relieve pain, and the swelling will be reduced.

If you have a severe toothache, apply the Pain Panacea on a piece of cotton and bathe gum at the same time; it will stop the pain instantly.

If you have a pain in the Breast, Side, Back or Kidneys, bathe the parts affected morning and night; at the same time take a dose of the Panacea internally.

If a Mother has a caked breast, apply the Panacea as hot as it can be borne.

If you feel chilly or cold, as though you were going to have a fever, take a dose of Panacea.

If you have a wound, cut, or gall upon your horse, apply the Pain Panacea; it will take out all the inflammation and heal the sore in a short time.
